

It's always important to select the right subcontractor.

It's even more important when your project is a critical communications
assignment.

For nearly 40 years, prime contractors have depended on Quintron to provide single-source, interoperable voice communications systems for important projects such as rocket launches, satellite control and battlefield simulations.

When a prime contractor or end customer hires Quintron, they can rest assured that our extensive technical expertise, responsiveness and cost-effective operating structure means that the job will be done correctly—on-time and on-budget. Too bad the architects in Pisa didn't have us around in the 12th century!
